

By: Erica Beth Kane

Wednesday, January 17, 2018

STEAK 48

{615 North Wabash Avenue; 312.266.4848}

Brothers Jeffrey and Michael Mastro (of Mastro's Steakhouse fame) introduced their newest concept, Steak 48, to Chicago. Having opened on the not-so-subtle stretch of Wabash Avenue between Ontario and Ohio Streets, the location alone in the booming River North neighborhood makes this destination a hotspot. That and the veteran roster of steakhouse luminaries bringing decades of experience with them, including the Mastro brothers' father, Dennis; partner Scott Troilo, and Executive Chef Brian Key, who worked in the kitchen of Chicago steak staple Gibsons Steakhouse. The bi-level restaurant is made to feel different than the traditional steakhouse experience —sexier, more intimate, featuring bold art, quiet nooks and an energetic vibe. The steak is proudly Midwestern, hailing from reserves in Michigan and Wisconsin, and is butchered in-house everyday. And if you're feeling adventurous, crown your beef with one of Chef's special toppings—green peppercorn, chef-style Burrata, or black truffle sautéed lobster to name a few. STEAK48.COM

<http://diningout.com/magazine/chicago/index.html>